my blooming business: Dinner Club H. C. McNeile, 2024-09-14 Dinner Club by H. C. McNeile centers around a secretive group of affluent men who meet regularly to discuss and exact vigilante justice on perceived wrongdoers. Each character, with distinct backgrounds and motivations, brings unique perspectives to these morally ambiguous decisions. The themes of morality, justice, and power dynamics are prevalent as the club members navigate the thin line between right and wrong. The novel tackles the corruption within societal and legal frameworks, echoing contemporary concerns about the integrity of institutions. The story scrutinizes how personal biases and subjective morality can influence decisions, reflecting modern debates about justice and accountability in law enforcement and governance. Modern readers might find the exploration of vigilante justice particularly resonant in an age where social media often acts as a tribunal. As individuals increasingly take justice into their own hands online, the novel's themes highlight the potential dangers and consequences of such actions. The novel questions the true nature of justice and whether it can ever be fully objective or devoid of personal influence. McNeile's Dinner Club remains relevant today as it probes the complexities of moral judgment and authority. Its narrative invites readers to consider the consequences of bypassing established legal systems in favor of personal retribution. By examining the fragile balance between justice and power, the book provides a timeless commentary on the ethical dilemmas faced by society, urging a reflection on how far one should go in the name of justice.

McNeile or the pseudonym Sapper). On a certain day in the year of grace 1920, there came into being a special and very select club, with no entrance fee and no subscription, which made it different from all other clubs. Its membership was limited to six: the Actor, the Barrister, the Doctor, the Ordinary Man, the Soldier, and the Writer. my blooming business: The Trials & Triumphs of a Regimental Commander During World War II Thomas A. Glass, 2005 This is a memoir by Colonel Thomas A. Glass of his military training and experiences prior to, during and after World War II. It is a very personal account which details what army life was like for a young officer and his wife. As a very junior second lieutenant he served as supply officer and transportation officer for the harbor defenses of Honolulu. In 1940, he reported to the just activated 21st Engineer Aviation Regiment, the first regiment dealing specifically with aviation in the Corps of Engineers. In 1942 he activated and took command of the 816th Engineer Aviation Battalion which built a heavy bomber base at Gosfield in Essex, England. In August of 1943 he was promoted to commanding officer of the newly formed 925th Engineer Aviation Regiment which built heavy bomber bases, air depots and other air facilities in England. The 925th Engineer Aviation Regiment served in Normandy and in the middle of July of 1944, was assigned the mission of supporting and providing the necessary airfield facilities for the XIX Tactical Air Command, the air arm of General Patton's 3rd Army. Except for brief periods in Germany when the 925th was temporarily attached to 1st Army and 7th Army, the 925th remained with 3rd Army. The 925th built the first airfield across the Rhine River at Eudembach. After the war Colonel Glass served in the Engineers Office, U. S. Headquarters Army Air Force in the Pentagon. He studied major heavy earth moving equipment companies, and then became Chief, Procurement Division, Office Chief of Engineers, U.S. Army. He transferred to the Air Force and supervised the move of MATS (Military Air Transport Service) to Andrews Air Force Base. The book concludes with his resignation from the Air Force in 1949 caused by the conflict of career and family.

my blooming business: Dearest Chums and Partners Joel Chandler Harris, 1993 Harris's literary output during the period in which these letters were written was considerable. He produced thirteen books during the 1890s and contributed numerous short stories, essays, and articles to Scribner's and other national magazines; he was also deriving a steady income as associate editor for the Atlanta Constitution. Living in the West End section of Atlanta, he filled his letters with fascinating details of daily life, along with insights on such famous visitors to the city as James Whitcomb Riley, William Jennings Bryan, and James O'Neill. Dearest Chums and Partners also elucidates heretofore undisclosed aspects of the writer's personality and tastes, including his significant interest in the Roman Catholic Church. His French-Canadian wife, Esther LaRose Harris, was a devout Catholic, and their two daughters, Lillian and Mildred, attended convent school together. Many of the letters were mailed to the two girls at St. Joseph's Academy in Washington, Georgia. Because all incoming and outgoing mail was screened by the nuns, Harris developed a rapport with several of the sisters and wrote parts for them in skits he created for his daughters. Letters to his sons tended to be more instructive, although he would clarify his intent: I am not lecturing, nor issuing orders. I am merely making suggestions. He advised Julian to keep a journal and to record his experience and observation each day, and all the incidents that occur, adding, To do this would seem monotonous to you now, but it would be invaluable to you later..
