Overview of Western Governors University

Western Governors University was founded in 1997 by a consortium of U.S. governors with the vision of creating a flexible, online education platform that meets the needs of adult learners. WGU's mission emphasizes accessibility and affordability, making higher education attainable for those who may not have the time or resources to attend traditional brick-and-mortar institutions. The university specializes in various disciplines, including business, teaching, information technology, and health care.

WGU operates on a unique model that allows students to progress through their courses at their own pace, focusing on mastering the material rather than adhering to a strict semester schedule. This flexibility is particularly advantageous for business students who may be balancing work, family, and other commitments while pursuing their educational goals.

Competency-Based Education Model

One of the standout features of Western Governors University is its competency-based education (CBE) model. This approach allows students to progress through their coursework based on their ability to demonstrate mastery of the subject matter rather than time spent in class.

Benefits of Competency-Based Learning

The CBE model offers several advantages, including:

- Personalized Learning: Students can focus on their strengths and spend more time on areas where they need improvement.
- Flexibility: Courses can be completed at any time, allowing students to balance their studies with personal and professional responsibilities.
- Cost Efficiency: Students can save money by completing courses more quickly, potentially reducing their overall tuition costs.

This innovative learning model is particularly well-suited for adult learners who may have varying levels of experience and knowledge in business-related subjects.

Accreditation and Recognition

Accreditation is a crucial factor when choosing a university, and WGU is regionally accredited by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities (NWCCU). This accreditation ensures that the institution meets high standards of quality in education and that its degrees are widely recognized by employers and other educational institutions.

In addition to institutional accreditation, many of WGU's business programs have received specialized accreditations from organizations such as the Accreditation Council for Business Schools and Programs (ACBSP). This further underscores the quality and rigor of the business curriculum offered at WGU.
