developing emotional resilience in faith: Human Development and Faith (Second Edition)

Felicity B. Kelcourse, 2015-07-28 This book, now in its second edition, brings together the best available understandings of human development from a multidisciplinary perspective. Uniquely inclusive of the moral and faith dimensions of context and life-cycle development, Human Development and Faith examines the interplay of mind, body, family, community, and soul at every stage of development. It addresses two central questions: What are the good-enough conditions of parenting, family, and community in each phase of life, from birth to death, which support growth and development? What gives life adequate meaning as development proceeds? If human development describes the normative and hoped-for passages of life, then faith provides the necessary component of meaning. Throughout the various perspectives offered in this volume is the premise that faith is that quality of living that makes it possible to fully live. The Journal of Pastoral Theology called the first edition of Human Development and Faith an excellent text for pastoral theology courses, because it fulfills its ambitious goal of bringing a holistic faith perspective to the usual topics of development. This second edition includes a new chapter on infancy, updates reflecting our growing awareness of cultural diversity, and a new preface.

developing emotional resilience in faith: Discovering God's Love Jason Martin, 2015-07-03 I ask Him to speak, and I wait. When He speaks His gentle voice calms my inner man, and He whispers to my spirit that I am His. He speaks over and over again how He loves me. Every time I come, He says it again, I am His, He is mine. These words echo in my mind and heart and I begin to believe that it could be true. I ask Him about this fear and that negative feeling and He responds to each one sending me to scriptures that are far too similar to always be coincidence. My confidence in His love rises as I begin to believe that He will always answer and His love for me won't change. I start to notice that issues of the past start to melt away, past sins are gently overcome by His acceptance of me. Insecurities shrink and I am no longer shifted so easily by life and rejection from others. Love seems to have become my nature and I don't remember having chosen to behave. At times I am tempted to return eye for eye, but now I turn to my Comfort and the temptation leaves and I choose love instead. The moments of temptation become fewer and fewer. I find that I hunger for His voice and His word. I want to see mysteries in the scriptures and find new ways to love others. He answers my question, How do I do this? Will You teach me to do that? Always His love is wooing me and beaconing me to come away, and I find that He is now my delight. Now every negative emotion is an opportunity to hear more from Him, and opportunity to grow. I find that faith comes easier, faith for tires, faith for jobs, faith for cars. He gives me things and whispers His love as sleep and when I wake. He catches me unaware and sings song back to me. He even says thank you as I show love to someone else. Now He talks to me of inheritance and letting go of self. He shows me how I chase value and tells me I can find it in Him. Peace becomes my normal state, with fits of joy popping up regularly. Even other people take notice and tell me of the peace they see and ask why I'm always happy and why nothing seems to bother me. In worship He spends more time loving me than I am able to love Him back. No one can convince me that He isn't real, no one can convince me that His love isn't mine. At every stage He has convinced me both by experience and by countless scriptures that this has to be God.

developing emotional resilience in faith: Tearfund and the Quest for Faith-Based Development Dena Freeman, 2019-08-19 This book gives an in-depth analysis of the role of faith in the work of Tearfund, a leading evangelical relief and development NGO that works in over 50 countries worldwide. The study traces the changing ways that faith has shaped and influenced Tearfund's work over the organisation's 50-year history. It shows how Tearfund has consciously grappled with the role of faith in its work and has invested considerable time and energy in developing an intentionally faith-based approach to relief and development that in several ways is quite different to the approaches of secular relief and development NGOs. The book charts the different perspectives and possibilities that were not taken and the internal discussions about theology, development practices, and humanitarian standards that took place as Tearfund worked out for itself what it meant to be a faith-based relief and development organisation. There is a growing academic literature about religion and development, as well as increasing interest from development ministries of many Northern governments in understanding the role of religion in development and the specific challenges and benefits involved in working with faith-based organisations. However, there are very few studies of actual faith-based organisations and no book-length detailed studies showing how such an organisation operates in practice and how it integrates its faith into its work. In documenting the story of Tearfund, the book provides important insights into the practice and ethos of faith-based organisations, which will be of interest to other FBOs and to researchers of religion and development.
