red ribbon essay competition 2025: The Red Ribbon Nancy Freund Bills, 2025-07-30 In the summer of 1994, a freak lightning and thunder storm explodes on the southern coast of Maine, killing Nancy Bills's husband and critically wounding her younger son. She promises her late husband that she will write their family's story and bind it with a red ribbon of love and courage. In language alternately tender and gritty, The Red Ribbon documents the aftermath of Bills's husband's death. As a wife, she grieves and attempts to rebuild her life; as a mother, she strains to be the parent her young adult sons need. Then, one year later, she is faced with more loss—this time, the father whom she adores. After his death, other deaths, some anticipated and others unpredictable, follow. Meanwhile, the impending death of her aging mother is a particular challenge; Nancy struggles to be a good daughter, and on many visits to Montana, her home state, she tries to mend their painful history. Insightful, moving, and full of intelligence and humanity, The Red Ribbon is a story of surviving the many and often devastating lightning strikes of life, and a gift of compassion and wisdom for readers who are struggling with their own losses.

red ribbon essay competition 2025: Rebel Mechanics Shanna Swendson, 2015-07-14 It's 1888, and seventeen-year-old Verity Newton lands a job in New York as a governess to a wealthy leading family—but she quickly learns that the family has big secrets. Magisters have always ruled the colonies, but now an underground society of mechanics and engineers are developing non-magical sources of power via steam engines that they hope will help them gain freedom from British rule. The family Verity works for is magister—but it seems like the children's young guardian uncle is sympathetic to the rebel cause. As Verity falls for a charming rebel inventor and agrees to become a spy, she also becomes more and more enmeshed in the magister family's life. She soon realizes she's uniquely positioned to advance the cause—but to do so, she'll have to reveal her own dangerous secret.

Shaped by prevailing gender and racial norms and popularized by a Western-driven car culture, it is a commodity whose access and use embodies wider inequalities. In this comprehensive world history of (auto)mobility, Gijs Mom draws upon his extensive research into the field to assess the past and present of road cultures, and hypothesize their future. Ranging from the impact of climate change to decolonization, this volume spotlights how profoundly 'automobilism' impacts our sense of identity and imagination.

red ribbon essay competition 2025: Seven Years Unseen Hamza Abushalha , 2025-09-21 At 1:14 a.m., a perfect hole appears in the glass face of a ruined bridge clock—no gunshot, no silhouette, only a cold circle that means one thing: the Meridian Ghost is back after seven years of silence. Ava Mirel, an investigative journalist who never learned how to look away, is pulled into a citywide puzzle with night warden Laleh Arkady, the only person who knows Graybridge after midnight. The Ghost does not grandstand. He teaches through physics: sightlines cut across rooftops, mirrors throw light into alleys, and parallax turns a safe street into a trap. A red thread shows up where the angles meet. A ceramic wedge hums in the air. The number 514 opens locked rooms from the observatory dome to a library basement and a haunted print shop where a nicked letterpress leaves maps pressed into the page. As the city begins to breathe in fear, Ava refuses the panic script. She reads glass, not rumor. She times light, not gossip. With Laleh on the roofs and a radio that never says her full name, Ava races a quiet opponent who draws perfect circles and never speaks. Each clue is small but exact: rings of light across windows, chalk marks on stone, a clock hand that ticks the wrong minute. To stop the next hit, she must learn his sightlines—and make him learn her footsteps. Seven Years Unseen is a high-tension, non-graphic thriller that swaps gore for precision and noise for design. It's a cat-and-mouse chase written in clean geometry and city breath: doors, bridges, stairwells, reflections. When Ava finally understands why 1:14 matters, the question is no longer who the Ghost is, but what he wants the city to see—and whether she can stand in her own shadow long enough to turn the line of fire into a line of proof. For readers who crave puzzle-rich suspense, smart clues, and momentum you feel in your chest, this novel lights the fuse on the first minute and never lets it go.

red ribbon essay competition 2025: Republic of Detours Scott Borchert, 2025-09-23 A New York Times Book Review Editors' Choice | Winner of the New Deal Book Award An immersive account of the New Deal project that created state-by-state guidebooks to America, in the midst of the Great Depression—and employed some of the biggest names in American letters. The plan was as idealistic as it was audacious—and utterly unprecedented. Take thousands of hard-up writers and put them to work charting a country on the brink of social and economic collapse, with the aim of producing a series of guidebooks to the then forty-eight states—along with hundreds of other publications dedicated to cities, regions, and towns—while also gathering reams of folklore, narratives of formerly enslaved people, and even recipes, all of varying quality, each revealing distinct sensibilities. All this was the singular purview of the Federal Writers' Project, a division of the Works Progress Administration founded in 1935 to employ jobless writers, from once-best-selling novelists and acclaimed poets to the more dubiously qualified. The FWP took up the lofty goal of rediscovering America in words and soon found itself embroiled in the day's most heated arguments regarding radical politics, racial inclusion, and the purpose of writing—forcing it to reckon with the promises and failures of both the New Deal and the American experiment itself. Scott Borchert's Republic of Detours tells the story of this raucous and remarkable undertaking by delving into the experiences of key figures and tracing the FWP from its optimistic early days to its dismemberment by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. We observe notable writers at their day jobs, including Nelson Algren, broke and smarting from the failure of his first novel; Zora Neale Hurston, the most widely published Black woman in the country; and Richard Wright, who arrived in the FWP's chaotic New York City office on an upward career trajectory courtesy of the WPA. Meanwhile, Ralph Ellison, Studs Terkel, John Cheever, and other future literary stars found encouragement and security on the FWP payroll. By way of these and other stories, Borchert illuminates an essentially noble enterprise that sought to create a broad and inclusive self-portrait of America at a time when the nation's very identity and future were thrown into question. As the United States enters a new era of economic distress, political strife, and culture-industry turmoil, this book's lessons are urgent and strong.
