Overview of Stonehill Academic Advising

Stonehill academic advising is designed to assist students in navigating their academic journey from enrollment through graduation. The advising program focuses on fostering student success by providing comprehensive support tailored to individual needs. Academic advisors at Stonehill work closely with students to clarify educational objectives, select appropriate courses, and ensure compliance with degree requirements. The program emphasizes proactive communication and collaborative planning to help students achieve their academic and professional goals efficiently.

Purpose and Goals

The primary purpose of Stonehill academic advising is to guide students in making informed decisions about their academic paths. Key goals include helping students understand curriculum requirements, explore career options, develop critical thinking skills, and cultivate lifelong learning habits. By offering structured advising, Stonehill ensures that students remain on track to graduate and are well-prepared for post-college endeavors.

Who Benefits from Advising?

All students at Stonehill College benefit from academic advising services. Whether a first-year student adjusting to college life or a senior finalizing graduation plans, academic advising is essential. Students facing academic challenges, those exploring new majors, or individuals seeking career guidance also find these services invaluable. Stonehill academic advising is inclusive and supports diverse student populations throughout their educational experience.

Advising Structure and Staff

The structure of Stonehill academic advising is organized to provide accessible and personalized support. The advising staff consists of professional academic advisors, faculty advisors, and specialized career counselors. Each group plays a specific role in guiding students through different stages of their academic career.

Professional Academic Advisors

Professional academic advisors at Stonehill serve as the primary point of contact for students regarding course planning and degree progress. They possess in-depth knowledge of academic policies and program requirements and assist students in developing academic plans that align with their goals.

Faculty Advisors

Faculty members act as academic advisors within their respective departments, offering discipline-specific advice and mentoring. Faculty advisors help students understand the nuances of their chosen fields, recommend relevant courses, and provide insights into research and professional opportunities.

Career Counseling and Support Staff

Career counselors complement academic advising by helping students connect their educational experiences with career planning. They provide resources for internships, job searches, resume building, and interview preparation. This integrated approach ensures that students receive holistic advising that bridges academics and career development.

Advising Process and Services

Stonehill academic advising follows a structured process designed to optimize student outcomes. The advising cycle involves initial orientation, regular advising appointments, academic progress reviews, and graduation planning. Various services support these components to create a seamless advising experience.

Orientation and Initial Advising

Upon entering Stonehill College, new students participate in orientation sessions where they are introduced to academic advising services. During this phase, students meet with assigned advisors to discuss initial course registration and academic expectations. This foundational advising helps students establish a clear academic roadmap from the outset.

Regular Advising Appointments

Throughout the academic year, students schedule advising appointments to review their progress, plan future courses, and address any academic concerns. These sessions involve evaluating transcript records, discussing course selection strategies, and adjusting academic plans as needed to accommodate changing interests or goals.

Degree Audits and Graduation Planning

Stonehill academic advising includes comprehensive degree audits to ensure students meet all graduation requirements. Advisors assist students in tracking completed credits, identifying remaining courses, and planning final semesters. This service prevents delays in graduation and supports timely completion of academic programs.

Specialized Support Services

Beyond standard advising, Stonehill offers specialized support such as tutoring referrals, academic skills workshops, and assistance for students with disabilities. These services enhance the advising process by addressing individual challenges and promoting academic success.

Benefits of Stonehill Academic Advising

Engaging with Stonehill academic advising provides numerous advantages that contribute to a positive and productive college experience. The personalized nature of the advising ensures that students receive targeted support tailored to their unique academic and career goals.

Improved Academic Performance

Effective academic advising helps students select appropriate courses and manage their workload, which can lead to improved grades and academic standing. Advisors also identify potential issues early, enabling timely interventions to support student success.

Clarified Educational Pathways

Stonehill academic advising provides clarity regarding degree requirements and program options. This guidance prevents unnecessary course repetition and ensures that students are aware of all academic opportunities, including minors, concentrations, and study abroad programs.

Enhanced Career Preparation

Through integrated career counseling, academic advising helps students connect their coursework with future employment opportunities. Advisors assist in developing skills and experiences that align with market demands, thus increasing employability after graduation.

Increased Student Satisfaction and Retention

Students who actively participate in academic advising report higher satisfaction with their college experience and are more likely to persist through to graduation. The support and mentorship provided by advisors foster a sense of belonging and motivation.

Resources and Tools for Students

Stonehill College provides a variety of resources and tools to complement academic advising and facilitate student planning. These resources are accessible through the college's academic support centers and online platforms.

Degree Planning Software

Students have access to degree planning software that allows them to track progress toward graduation, explore course options, and visualize academic pathways. This tool serves as a valuable supplement to in-person advising sessions.

Academic Calendars and Policy Guides

Comprehensive academic calendars and policy guides are available to keep students informed about registration deadlines, academic regulations, and grading policies. Understanding these details is essential for effective academic planning.

Workshops and Seminars

Stonehill offers workshops on time management, study skills, and career development. These seminars enhance students' academic performance and personal growth, complementing the guidance received through academic advising.

Tips for Maximizing Academic Advising

To fully benefit from Stonehill academic advising, students should approach advising sessions proactively and prepared. Effective strategies can enhance the advising experience and contribute to academic success.

- Schedule advising appointments early each semester to secure preferred times.
- Prepare a list of questions or concerns to discuss during advising meetings.
- Review degree requirements and academic progress before appointments.
- Be open and honest about academic challenges or changes in goals.
- Follow up on advisor recommendations and use available resources.

By actively engaging with academic advisors and utilizing available tools, students can optimize their educational journey and achieve their full potential at Stonehill College.

stonehill academic advising: The Resource Handbook for Academic Deans Laura L. Behling, 2014-01-07 The Resource Handbook for Academic Deans, Third Edition This thoroughly revised volume is written by and for academic administrators. Each chapter explores a particular challenge or issue that has been identified by the American Conference of Academic Deans (ACAD) members as most relevant in their role as academic leaders, then provides practical step-by-step guidance that can help deans navigate even the toughest of situations. "There is no map for thriving as a dean, but this handbook offers an essential guidebook and compass for the journey. Both informed and inspired, it is above all humane in presenting the purpose, practice, and privilege of a dean's good work." —William J. Craft, president, Concordia College "Academic deans, both new and seasoned, will benefit enormously from this collection of ruminations by experienced and successful academic leaders on the issues that are most prominent and often most vexing for those who enter the arena of academic leadership. For newcomers to the deanery, this handbook will be an eye-opener; and for veteran deans, a helpful reminder of both first principles and best practices." —Richard Ekman, president, The Council of Independent Colleges "ACAD meetings and electronic communications are marked by collaboration and by sharing means for encouraging faculty and student success. The handbook exemplifies that spirit of collaboration as members articulate their candid and helpful recommendations for enhancing work with faculty and students." —Scott E. Evenbeck, president, Stella and Charles Guttman Community College "ACAD has created an extraordinary resource for the entire postsecondary community. For new and seasoned deans alike, the ACAD handbook offers a wealth of generous, wise, and practical guidance. Presenting lessons learned both from lived experiences and from organizational scholarship, the handbook will help deans succeed in their myriad essential roles." —Carol Geary Schneider, president, Association of American Colleges and Universities American Conference of Academic Deans (ACAD) is a nonprofit individual membership organization dedicated to the professional development of academic leaders. ACAD's mission is to assist these leaders as they advance in careers dedicated to the ideals of liberal education.

stonehill academic advising: How College Students Succeed Nicholas A. Bowman, 2023-07-03 Receiving a college education has perhaps never been more important than it is today. While its personal, societal, and overall economic benefits are well documented, too many college students fail to complete their postsecondary education. As colleges and universities are investing substantial resources into efforts to counter these attrition rates and increase retention, they are mostly unaware of the robust literature on student success that is often bounded in disciplinary silos. The purpose of this book is to bring together in a single volume the extensive knowledge on college student success. It includes seven chapters from authors who each synthesize the literature from their own field of study, or perspective. Each describes the theories, models, and concepts they use; summarizes the key findings from their research; and provides implications for practice, policy, and/or research. The disciplinary chapters offer perspectives from higher education, public policy, behavioral economics, social psychology, STEM, sociology, and critical and post-structural theory.

stonehill academic advising: Job One 2.0 Peter M. Magolda, Jill Ellen Carnaghi, 2014-04-15 In this second edition of Job One, editors Peter M. Magolda and Jill Ellen Carnaghi place new professionals' stories "center stage." The book focuses on narratives written by new professionals about their introduction and transitions into Student Affairs work. These stories document the joys and angst felt as new professionals prepare to transition from graduate school to work, search for their first Student Affairs position, assimilate campus norms, formulate a professional identity, satisfy supervisors' expectations, mediate cultural conflicts, and remain true to their personal and professional values. This book is a useful resource inviting new professionals, supervisors, and faculty to think differently about the on-going education and needs of new professionals, while offering a new perspective for optimizing new professionals' experiences. stonehill academic advising: What We Teach When We Teach DH Brian Croxall, Diane K. Jakacki, 2023-12-05 Exploring how DH shapes and is in turn shaped by the classroom How has the field of digital humanities (DH) changed as it has moved from the corners of academic research into the classroom? And how has our DH praxis evolved through interactions with our students? This timely volume explores how DH is taught and what that reveals about the field of DH. While institutions are formally integrating DH into the curriculum and granting degrees, many instructors are still almost as new to DH as their students. As colleagues continue to ask what digital humanities is, we have the opportunity to answer them in terms of how we teach DH. The contributors to What We Teach When We Teach DH represent a wide range of disciplines, including literary and cultural studies, history, art history, philosophy, and library science. Their essays are organized around four critical topics at the heart of DH pedagogy: teachers, students, classrooms, and collaborations. This book highlights how DH can transform learning across a vast array of curricular structures, institutions, and education levels, from high schools and small liberal arts colleges to research-intensive institutions and postgraduate professional development programs. stonehill academic advising: Completing College Vincent Tinto, 2012-03-01 Even as the number of students attending college has more than doubled in the past forty years, it is still the case that nearly half of all college students in the United States will not complete their degree within six years. It is clear that much remains to be done toward improving student success. For more than twenty years, Vincent Tinto's pathbreaking book Leaving College has been recognized as the definitive resource on student retention in higher education. Now, with Completing College, Tinto offers administrators a coherent framework with which to develop and implement programs to promote completion. Deftly distilling an enormous amount of research, Tinto identifies the essential conditions enabling students to succeed and continue on within institutions. Especially during the early years, he shows that students thrive in settings that pair high expectations for success with structured academic, social, and financial support, provide frequent feedback and assessments of their performance, and promote their active involvement with other students and faculty. And while these conditions may be worked on and met at different institutional levels, Tinto points to the classroom as the center of student education and life, and therefore the primary target for institutional action. Improving retention rates continues to be among the most widely studied fields in higher education, and Completing College carefully synthesizes the latest research and, most importantly, translates it into practical steps that administrators can take to enhance student success.

stonehill academic advising: Helping Sophomores Succeed Mary Stuart Hunter, Barbara F. Tobolowsky, John N. Gardner, Scott E. Evenbeck, Jerry A. Pattengale, Molly Schaller, Laurie A. Schreiner, 2009-11-02 Helping Sophomores Succeed offers an in-depth, comprehensive understanding of the common challenges that arise in a student's second year of college. Sponsored by the University of South Carolina's National Resource Center for The First-Year Experience® and Students in Transition, this groundbreaking book offers an examination of second-year student success and satisfaction using both quantitative and qualitative measures from national research findings. Helping Sophomores Succeed serves as a foundation for designing programs and services for the second-year student population that will help to promote retention, academic and career development, and personal transition and growth. Praise for Helping Sophomores Succeed Lost, lonely, stressed, pressured, unsupported, frequently indecisive, and invisible, many sophomores fall off the radar of campus educators at a time when they may most be seeking purpose, meaning, direction, intellectual challenge, and intellectual capacity building. The fine scholars who focused educators on the first-year and senior transitions have done it again? a magnificent book to focus on the sophomore year! ?Susan R. Komives, College Student Personnel Program, University of Maryland For years, student-centered institutions have front-loaded resources to promote student success in the first college year. This volume is rich with instructive ideas for how to sustain this important work in the second year of college. ?George D. Kuh, Chancellor's Professor and director, Indiana University Center for Postsecondary Research A pioneering work, this brilliant text explores in practical and meaningful ways the all but neglected sophomore-year experience, when students face critical choices about their major, their profession, their life purpose. ?Betty L. Siegel, president emeritus, Kennesaw State University? All members of the campus community?faculty, student affairs educators, staff, and students?will benefit from learning about the unique challenges of the second college year. The book provides research and best practices to help educators and students craft an integrated, comprehensive approach to helping second-year students succeed. ?Marcia Baxter Magolda, distinguished professor, Educational Leadership, Miami University The National Resource Center for The First-Year Experience® and Students in Transition supports and advances efforts to improve student learning and transitions into and through higher education by providing
